⌘⇧ You can now select cells in Excel 2016 for Mac if you update Excel to the latest version (15.0-15.5) or (155). If you want to update Excel earlier (for example, in 2010), then this will become possible. To do this, you need to click Excel Start in the Excel program or turn on the pause mode. Now you can change cells and sheets in Excel 2016 using Excel "Move", "Move" and "Back" (Fig. 9.4). Refreshing Excel with Tab View. Excel users can now navigate using the Tab button. The button has several buttons. To move to the previous or next Excel page view, hover over the current page view and click the button. To exit any page view, press Enter. Thanks to this menu, you can quickly go back a couple of pages or access a group of various indicators. To move to another group in Excel, you can use the following buttons: ⌘⇧ Data - here you can compare several calculations found in the report, as well as view and copy the data highlighted with a marker (Fig. 9.5). ⌘⇧ Sorting - transfers the selected cells from one Excel sheet to another (Fig.9.6). The View button allows you to see the results of all rows and columns of the table on the screen (Figure 10.2). Excel has many built-in functions for convenient work with tables. But to get the most out of working with Excel, it is advisable to use external programs such as Access and PowerPoint. In a future article, we'll look at some examples of how to build a reporting system.
