Also, the game will include the United 9, a collection of nine star players from the world's leading national teams. The United 9 will be available as a free update for players who own FIFA 21, while the full selection of teams will also be available as an additional in-game pack on all platforms. The in-game kit update for the United 9 team will go live first on PlayStation 4 on August 31, and then on Xbox One on September 2. The full United 9 team features "one of the great sporting rivalries," according to David Rutter, senior producer of FIFA. "By playing as these nine great players, they will deliver a new experience to football fans around the world." All of the United 9 players will make their FIFA debut on April 17. You can check out the FIFA United 9 squad and match background here. Finally, FIFA 22 will include the hotly-anticipated Ultimate Team, which will also be available for players to purchase as an in-game pack (or as a standalone item for FIFA Ultimate Edition owners) on Xbox One and PlayStation 4. The Ultimate Team features more than 100 international players in their FIFA peak form, and the pack will include digital players from all 22 FIFA 2018/19 World Cups and more than 1,000 new cards. The pack's goal is to deliver the most comprehensive roster of characters in the history of the franchise. The Ultimate Team will be available in August for players who own the game on Xbox One or PlayStation 4. The Ultimate Team will also be playable on the Xbox Live and PlayStation Network. Additionally, anyone who purchases FIFA 22 will receive access to eight international clubs, including Marseille, Roma and Chelsea from the English Premier League, as well as Tottenham Hotspur, Manchester City, and Borussia Dortmund from the German Bundesliga. Finally, the Ultimate Team will support the FIFA and Club World Cups.
